Letter of Recommendation

To the Admissions Committee,

I am Lou Haochen, homeroom teacher of Zhang Yichao. It is my great honor to recommend him, as I am fully confident in his exceptional potential to excel and contribute significantly in an international academic environment.

Academically, Zhang Yichao is an outstanding scholar with top-tier grades, demonstrating a remarkable aptitude for Biology and Chemistry. Intellectually curious and proactive, he engages with teachers through insightful questions that reflect deep comprehension of complex concepts. As Math Class Representative, he not only maintained exemplary performance but also generously assisted classmates with academic challenges, becoming a reliable support for peers and teachers.

In character and leadership, he is kind-hearted, approachable, and widely respected. During Grade 10, as Class Monitor, he showcased strong organizational skills, responsibility, and the ability to unite classmates, leading our class to remarkable achievements in school activities. His warm nature and eagerness to help make him a natural leader and collaborator.

In research, Zhang Yichao has a profound passion for scientific inquiry. During high school holidays, he led a hospital volunteer system research project focused on questionnaire design and data analysis, earning third prize in a school competition. His selection into the competitive national Youth Talent Program and achievements under a Zhejiang University professor's mentorship further attest to his rigorous analytical skills and intellectual drive.

In conclusion, Zhang Yichao is an exceptional student with academic excellence in STEM (especially Biology and Chemistry), admirable character, strong leadership, and remarkable research potential. I firmly believe the multicultural academic environment in Japan aligns perfectly with his aspirations. I strongly recommend him without reservation, confident he will thrive and make impactful contributions in his future academic pursuits.

Sincerely,

Lou Haochen
